

Paperman

The young man in “Paperman” encounters a woman in a train station. He is immediately taken with her and longs for another opportunity to see her when they part ways. To his surprise, he sees her across the street from his office building. He resolves to find a way to reconnect with her by folding and throwing paper airplanes at her window. Some of them fail, but one day, a wind blows strongly blowing his flying papers towards the window of that girl.

Moving on with his quest, the young man follows where the wind carries the airplanes through crowded streets of their city until he reaches her. Their reunion takes place amid all these paper planes that brought them together, symbolizing destiny’s strength and love’s enchantment. The movie “Paperman” beautifully shows that love can overcome hurdles even in unanticipated and chance events.
